Stocks in the News: FIMA Inc. (FIMA), Oimage, Inc. (OMAG), Green Builders Inc. (GBH)

May 12, 2008 -- FIMA, Inc. (Pink Sheets: FIMA), an emerging land development company incorporating resource exploration and mining, oil and gas exploration and extraction, and commercial and luxury residential real estate development in Central and South America, announced today that its subsidiary GoldSource has contracted the final environmental study based on the final mine design flow line for its Los Mates gold and silver project in Colombia. This latest step is one of the final regulatory hurdles for the Company before it begins the actual extraction process.

According to a Company spokesperson, "We are understandably anxious to move past the final regulatory steps in order to commence further operations at the Los Mates project, particularly in view of the most recent geology report detailing the amount of proven, probable, and possible gold and silver reserves at the site. However, we are also going to be very careful to conscientiously observe all of the necessary legal and regulatory requirements so that we can maintain sustained, healthy production levels for years to come."

Part of the Company's optimism stems from the tremendous opportunities in the current gold market. Global production of gold was at its peak in 1999 at just over 2600 metric tonnes, but has since hovered at or just below 2500 tonnes per annum every year since (Source: <http://www.goldsheets.com>). These production levels are not sufficient to meet annual global demand which has averaged more than 3800 metric tonnes from 1997 to 2002, creating a production shortfall of approximately 50% per annum (Source: World Gold Council). This tremendous disparity has been made up through the reintroduction of scrap into the market and the gradual sale of central bank gold reserves. However, as India and China, the world's largest and third-largest consumers of gold respectively, continue to industrialize, demand seems likely to increase, but the supplies of gold reserves in central banks cannot make up for the production shortfall indefinitely.

Oman Government Approves Commercial Terms for Oimage Project

Green Builders, Inc. Honored at NAHB National Green Building Awards

May 12, 2008 -- Who says it's not easy being green? Just ask the folks at Green Builders, Inc. (Amex: GBH), a leading large-scale community developer of sustainable homes in the Austin, Texas area, who have been selected as the 2008 Single Family Affordable Home of the Year at the National Green Building Awards held by the National Association of Home Builders (NAHB).

Now in its 10th year, the National Green Building Awards recognizes individuals, companies and organizations for excellence in residential green design, construction practices and for green building programs and advocacy efforts. Competition for this award was particularly intense, but Green Builders stood out amongst the nominees for their continued innovation and advancement in the field of environmentally sustainable home building, a hot topic throughout the housing market.

Green Builders, Inc. incorporates energy efficiency, water and resource conservation, the use of sustainable and/or recycled materials, and indoor air quality control -- all of which are considered when evaluating a green home. In addition, Green Builders' homes are built to the stringent Green Building Standards set by NAHB.

Green Builders' energy efficient and green, sustainable homes are priced from the $180,000s to $600,000s and available throughout the Austin area.

Market Summary The stock market rallied more than 1% on Monday as investors were encouraged that the market held up to an earnings warning from FedEx (FDX 90.50, +0.13) and a substantial loss at a major bond insurer. However, volume was light so it remains to be seen how concerted this upward move will be.

Stocks got off to a sluggish start after FedEx warned that its profit will fall short of its previous estimate. Also weighing on stocks was news that bond insurer MBIA (MBI 9.85, +0.42) lost a whopping $2.4 billion, or $14.03 per share.

The negative sentiment, however, was short-lived as shares of MBIA rebounded into positive territory shortly after the open as the company reassured investors it has plenty of liquidity.

The reversal of the two stocks helped lift overall sentiment. In the end, nine of the ten economic sectors posted a gain.

The consumer discretionary sector posted the largest advance of 2.1%.

The sector benefited from a 9.6% spike in shares of Clear Channel (CCU 32.87, +2.87).

A strong showing by retailers also gave the discretionary sector a boost.

The tech sector was active, and modestly outperformed the broader market with a 1.3% gain.

IT services company EDS (EDS 24.13, +5.27) spiked on word that Hewlett-Packard (HPQ 46.64, -2.49) is close to a deal to acquire EDS.

Research In Motion (RIM 141.97, +9.20) posted a hefty 7% gain.

Financials (+1.7%) provided leadership.

The energy sector underperformed on a relative basis, with a modest 0.2% decline.
